Transformative strategic acquisition overview

Barfresh has completed the acquisition of Arps Dairy: A family-owned creamery located in the Midwest with an 80+ year history and meaningful revenue operating at breakeven

- This acquisition provides immediate scale to Barfresh:

- ✓ New 44,000 sq ft manufacturing facility
- ✓ Robust synergies to enhance combined business profitability
- ✓ Arps Dairy's revenue to immediately accelerate combined business top-line growth
- ✓ Production security for Barfresh
- ✓ We view this as a value-accretive opportunity supported by a high-quality asset base

barfresh®

Situation Overview and Acquisition Rationale

- Barfresh recently acquired Arps Dairy, a family-owned creamery located in the Midwest with circa $15M revenues and approximately breakeven adjusted EBITDA
 - Notably, the acquisition included a new 44,000 sq ft manufacturing facility with construction and equipment installation expected by the end of 2026
 - The acquired company Arps Dairy was historically profitable and expanded operations in 2023/2024 in anticipation of increased demand and a move to a new facility
 - However, Arps Dairy's inefficient logistics and a margin squeeze from unfavorable commodity price shifts exposed underlying cost issues, impacting profitability despite record revenues in early 2024
- This acquisition would serve as a launchpad for significant future growth opportunities while expediting Barfresh's path to scale
 - ✓ Target financial profile accelerates and boosts our profitability
 - ✓ Identified meaningful synergies to further enhance profitability and accelerate revenue of the combined business
 - ✓ Production security for Barfresh
 - ✓ Acquisition cost was below the fair value of assets acquired
- While Arps Dairy revenue is low-margin business, Barfresh plans to continue the existing business to cover fixed costs while growing higher margin, value-add Barfresh business, as well as co-manufacture for other products as capacity and management focus permits

Meaningful Synergies Identified

Tolling Charge Margin Recapture

Eliminates fees previously paid to third-party co-manufacturers, boosting gross margin by internalizing production

Freight Cost Reduction

Consolidated operations reduce inbound shipping and freight-to-storage costs through optimized logistics

Ingredient Volume Pricing

Larger, consolidated ingredient purchases drive better volume-based pricing and procurement efficiency

Cold Storage Savings

Owning the facility avoids third-party cold storage fees, lowering recurring overhead costs

New customer expansion opportunity

In addition to the acquisition of Arps Dairy, Barfresh has interest from multiple other large customers for production at its new facility.

We plan to take advantage of our existing planned buildout of the new Arps Dairy facility, making incremental improvements to accommodate this new customer's capacity, streamlining construction and efficiency of the process

We expect these new customers to meaningfully enhance our go-forward financial profile and growth trajectory in 2027 and beyond
